It's performance week!

We are finally here. After all the hard work planning, researching, writing, rehearsing, costumes, and stage management, we have made it to performance week, that is something to celebrate in itself and I want to thank you all for your effort and contribution.

Thank you to everyone who has already bought or sold tickets or helped us in any way. Without your support we would not have reached this point.

Tickets have sold really well for The Grasshopper and we are almost at full capacity. The same cannot be said for The Black Cherry. We heard the sad news that it is closing down at the end of the month however Rachel has assured me that everything is fine for our rehearsal and our performances. I think that this may have had a knock-on effect that they haven't felt able to promote our production through their website despite the fact that Marie has been sending frequent updates, videos and information to them several times a week. However, it is what it is and we must make sure that we have a good audience each night and that they have a really good experience. It is actually down to us now to try and sell more tickets for our Black Cherry performances. We have at least two reviewers coming to see us. If your friends, families and social groups you are involved in have not yet bought their tickets, let's have one last push to persuade them to do so.
